THE GLOTCH TAKES SILVER AT INPEX DEBUT Alternative Outdoor Watch Takes Second in Sports Category

Pittsburgh, PA – The Glotch, a product of Mindsprawl, captured the silver medal at the 2004 INPEX (Invention/New Products Exposition) at the Expo Mart in Monroeville, PA. The Glotch, a watch worn on the back of any glove, was a Jury Awards silver medalist in the sports category at its convention debut.

The ingenious brainchild of inventor Jason Lukacsko came to fruition after he tired of digging through layers of ski/snowboard gear just to get to his watch. Lukacsko, a native of St. Clairsville, Ohio, introduced The Glotch to the public in November of 2004 – just seven months prior to the INPEX show. Lukacsko earned a degree in Industrial Design from the Columbus College of Art and Design.

The Glotch is simple in concept, yet exceptional in design. It is a durable shock- and water-resistant watch body with an adjustable, polyester-braided elastic band that fits easily and securely over any glove or mitten to give you a safe, hands-free look at your watch. Features of The Glotch include time, date, stopwatch, nightlight and alarm.

The Glotch is great for any outdoor activity including hunting, paint ball, dirt bike/ATV riders and runners and comes with a three-year manufacturer's warranty. It is available on-line at www.TheGlotch.com.
